Oak.--By far the most popular wood for fine interior finish in all parts of the house, floors and furniture, because of its grain, figure, color, susceptibility to good finish, and medium price. It is hard, either white or red in color and lends itself to staining in many different ways. Does not take paint well. Walnut.--A most beautiful wood for dark finish or furniture, but its scarcity makes it expensive. It is hard, takes a fine finish, and is particularly good for dining room, library or large dignified decoration. Chestnut.--Good for woodwork, but too soft and spongy for floors. May be stained and varnished. CLOSE-GRAINED WOODS. Birch--Red or Black.--Very popular for interior finish and furniture--not so good for floors. It is especially beautiful when stained mahogany. It has a very fine grain, is often beautifully figured and takes a high polish. Basswood or White Wood.--Used for interior finish, generally when enamel or paint is to be used over it. Cherry.--A beautiful wood for woodwork, taking stain well and making handsome finish whether kept in natural reddish tone or in mahogany color. Fir (Oregon).--A light, soft, rather coarse-grained wood, but compact in structure. On account of the light brown heart wood contrasting with light color of the outer wood, staining may be difficult, but the result is good. For the same reason painting should be three coat work. Poplar, White or Yellow.--For woodwork or for exterior siding. It is quite soft; expands and...
