The effects are remote and not so readily traced to their cause. Here and there in our churches an individual young man is found in possession of piety and talents, but of obscure birth and indigent circumstances. He is sought out by his pastor or some Christian friend, who knows his worth, and encouraged to commence a course of study in preparation for the ministry. He listens to the advice of friends in whose judgment he has confidence, and enters with trembling on the great enterprise. Unable to meet the necessary expenses, he applies to the Education Society for assistance and places himself under their patronage. The assistance rendered is designed to be no more than is necessary will untiring industry and...
